Quality survey: health crisis, grandparents and solidarity between generations

You are grandparents and have always been involved in your children's and grandchildren's lives. The health crisis we are currently going through leads to disruptions within your family and you wish to show your solidarity with your offspring and even with your ascendants.

1. You are a ☐ woman ☐ men 2. Your age ____ 3. Number of children ____

4. Are your parents or an older relative you care about still alive?

☐ yes ☐ no

If this is the case, how have you been taking care of these ascendants since the beginning of the crisis?

5. Because of the crisis have your children had to face unemployment or partial unemployment ☐ yes ☐ no loss of income or loss of job ☐ yes ☐ no

6. Do you show solidarity with them? How?

☐ Financial support ☐ Psychological support Any form of support…

7. How many grandchildren do you have? How old are they?

8. Are the elder ones who are students faced with difficulties in pursuing their studies? Do those who have completed their studies face difficulties in integrating the working world ? Do you help them?

9. Are you seeing your grandchildren as regularly as before lockdown? ☐ yes ☐ no

If you see them less often, in what way(s) do you show solidarity with them? How do you maintain the link between the generations?

10. The crisis has forced people over 65, that is to say the generation of grandparents, to stay at home… Did you or didn't you feel that we were being infantilized, put on the rubbish pile, in short made "useless" by our societies since we were not even allowed to look after our grandchildren? How did you confront and still confront this?
